

If you like excitement,
challenge, and making a difference in your world...

...then a career with the Office of the Inspector General,
Department of Defense,
may be just what you're looking for.

As you are aware from the news media, issues such as information security, financial management, the changing threat, military readiness, health care fraud...are confronting the Department of Defense today. If you want to be a part of a team that looks at these and other major issues facing our nation's defense, then a career with the Office of the Inspector General, Department of Defense, may be just what you are looking for.

The Defense Inspector General was established by an amendment to the Inspector General Act of 1978. It was created to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness, and to guard against fraud, waste, and abuse in the Department of Defense.

A career opportunity with the Inspector General provides challenge, diversity, travel within the United States and overseas, work that makes a difference, and excellent career progression. The Inspector General is headquartered in Arlington, Virginia, and has field offices throughout the United States.

Inspector General employees are highly motivated, well-trained professionals committed to protecting the taxpayers' interest while ensuring that the Government receives the best and safest military equipment.

Visit us on the web at <http://www.dodig.osd.mil/audit/index.html>

The Mission

The organization is comprised of skilled civilian and military personnel who are dedicated to supporting the defense of the United States by promoting economy, efficiency, and effectiveness, and by preventing and detecting fraud, waste, and abuse. The organization fulfills its mission by conducting audits, evaluations, and investigations. The Inspector General, a Presidential Appointee, keeps the Secretary of Defense, Congress, and other Defense Managers apprised of problems and deficiencies with Defense programs and operations and recommends corrective actions. The independence of the Inspector General allows for complete freedom in reporting the results of its work.

The Office of the Inspector General also:

- ☐ Identifies mismanagement;
- ☐ Promotes management improvement;
- ☐ Pursues violations of law, regulations, and procedures;
- ☐ Operates the Defense Hotline while protecting the confidentiality of the complainant;
- ☐ Ensures corrective actions are taken.

Although the full impact of the Inspector General's work cannot be measured, billions of taxpayer dollars are saved each year as a result of its recommendations.

People: the Key Component

People are the key to success of any organization. The Inspector General employs approximately 1200 civilian and military auditors, evaluators, investigators, technical experts, and support staff to fulfill the Inspector General's mission. These professional and culturally diverse individuals conduct the audits, evaluations and investigations. The coverage provided to Defense operations and programs is determined by law, requests from the Secretary of Defense and other managers, Hotline allegations, congressional requests, and analyses of risk in Defense programs. Defense senior managers recognize the value and professional competence of the organization and increasingly request its involvement in some of the most critical, complex, and sensitive issues facing the Defense Department.

Auditors conduct operational and financial audits on all facets of Defense operations using prescribed auditing techniques and standards. Their work results in reduced costs, improved performance, stronger internal controls, and compliance with laws and regulations. A few examples of audit topics are major weapon system acquisitions, contracts, financial statements, military readiness, and automated systems. Auditors' efforts routinely result in potential cost savings of billions of dollars annually.

Investigators conduct investigations of suspected criminal violations, primarily contract and procurement fraud; antitrust violations; bribery; corruption; health care fraud; intrusions into Department of Defense computer systems; and large scale thefts of

The Office of the Assistant Inspector General for Auditing

Government property. Their efforts protect the Defense Department from criminals who illegally profit from huge Defense contracts through a variety of fraudulent schemes. Each year, Inspector General investigators are responsible for millions of dollars in recoveries, fines, restitutions, and settlements; indictments and convictions; and contractor debarments and suspensions.

Technical experts include statisticians, engineers, computer specialists, and business and industry analysts. These experts provide technical advice and assistance to auditors, evaluators and investigators in achieving the overall mission of the Inspector General.

Successful auditors, evaluators and investigators are individuals who are dedicated to a career in public service, have analytical and logical reasoning abilities, can determine where and how to gather data, have good written and oral communication skills, and can work effectively with a variety of people.

You can make a difference with a career in auditing at the Office of the Assistant Inspector General for Auditing. Your assignments could take you to Navy Shipyards, to Capitol Hill, to contractor facilities, and to military bases in both the United States and overseas. If variety appeals to you and you are interested in challenging your skills, imagination, and dedication to excellence, then we have the career for you. You would be a part of a team that is dedicated to maximizing the accountability of the Department of Defense to the American public by ensuring that every American tax dollar invested in defense earns a dollar's worth of return in defense programs and operations.

The Audit Organization

The Office of the Assistant Inspector General for Auditing is made up of four audit directorates, a policy and oversight office, and one support directorate. We employ more than 600 auditors, evaluators, and administrative and technical staff. We conduct two types of audits: operational and financial. An operational audit is a constructive evaluation of the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness with which managerial responsibilities are carried out. A financial audit determines whether financial statements or reports are fairly presented and accurately portray the status of funds and other assets and the results of operations. Primary responsibilities of each audit directorate are listed below.

Acquisition Management

- ☐ Acquisition and support of major weapon systems
- ☐ Research, development, test, and evaluation programs
- ☐ Information Technology

Contract Management

- ☐ Contract Administration
- ☐ Procurement of supplies and services
- ☐ Military construction and environmental programs

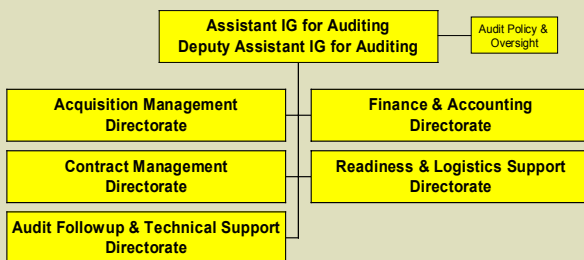

Finance and Accounting

- ☐ Financial statements
- ☐ Financial systems, processes, and programs

Readiness and Logistics Support

- ☐ Supply management and transportation programs
- ☐ Weapon systems maintenance programs
- ☐ DoD health care programs
- ☐ International programs
- ☐ DoD readiness

Organizational Chart

Travel

Audits are conducted at Defense and contractor facilities and require frequent travel throughout the United States and occasional travel to Europe and Pacific areas. Auditors may travel 50 percent or more of the time.

Rotational Policies

Due to the variety of challenging audit assignments, you will be encouraged to rotate into different audit areas to increase your working knowledge of audit functional areas and to promote your career development.

Training

Auditors receive 80 or more hours of training every two years. Formal and on-the-job training are provided to develop the auditing, analytical, oral, written, computer, and fraud detection skills that are required throughout an auditor's career. You will also receive specialized training for the specific subject areas audited such as weapon systems acquisition, contracting, communications, and automated systems. The Inspector General organization pays for all or a portion of the cost of job-related, self-improvement courses. Courses may include graduate courses and review courses for the Certified Internal Auditor and the Certified Public Accountant examination.

Benefits

Salaries, Advancement, and Working Hours

Entry level salaries are competitive—based on your education and experience. Career advancement opportunities are excellent. Generally, based on performance, auditors can progress from the entry level to the GS-12 level in one year increments. Superior performers advance to senior management and executive positions. The IG, DoD also offers a choice of flexible working hour programs.

Vacation

Annual leave (vacation) is based on length of Government service, including any military service. For the first three years of Government service, an employee earns 13 days of paid vacation per year. After three years, paid vacation will increase to 20 days a year and will further increase to 26 days a year when an employee has been with the Government for 15 years. Thirty days may be carried over to the next year.

Sick Leave

Regardless of the length of service, employees earn 13 days of sick leave a year. There is no limit to the amount of sick leave an employee can accumulate.

Other Leave

Provisions for paid and/or unpaid leave exist to take care of other absences for such reasons as maternity, military obligations, court attendance, and voting.

Holidays

The Federal Government observes 10 legal holidays each year.

Health Benefits

Group hospitalization insurance is offered by a variety of carriers. The employee can select individual or family coverage. A portion of the premium is paid by the Government. No physical examination is required, and there are no restrictions on age or physical condition.

Life Insurance

New employees have the option of selecting low-cost life insurance coverage--regardless of age or physical condition. A variety of options are offered.

Retirement

Employees hired after January 1, 1987, are automatically covered by the Federal Employee's Retirement System. The total annuity is based on social security, basic benefits, and a thrift savings plan. The thrift savings plan features limited Government matching of employee contributions and allows the employee to postpone paying taxes on earnings until the funds are withdrawn.

Equal Employment Opportunity

Employees are assured of equal consideration for promotion regardless of race, sex, age, religion, color, national origin, lawful political affiliation, marital status, membership in an employee organization, or nondisqualifying physical or mental disability.

Profile of a Qualified Employee

The Successful Auditor...

- ☐ Thrives on analytical methods and drawing informed conclusions.
- ☐ Makes comparisons and quickly observes irregularities.
- ☐ Learns quickly.
- ☐ Moves easily from entry level to more complex assignments.
- ☐ Communicates with managers at all levels.
- ☐ Is skilled in interviewing, writing, and maintaining accurate, organized records.
- ☐ Works as part of a team.

If this sounds like you, then a job with the Office of the Assistant Inspector General for Auditing, may be just what you're looking for.

Career Opportunities

All components of the Inspector General organization have vital roles to play in the detection and prevention of fraud, waste, and abuse. Their combined efforts make the Office of the Inspector General an exciting and rewarding place to work. If you would like to learn more about how to contribute to the welfare and safety of your country by becoming an auditor, contact: The Office of the Inspector General Department of Defense, Personnel and Security Directorate, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202-2884.

When you decide on a career with the Department of Defense, Office of the Inspector General, you'll be making a valuable contribution to your country's future as well as your own.

Visit us on the web at www.dodig.osd.mil.